

Loss of Political Power for Civilian Politicians

Growing influence of military ⇒ caused civilian politicians political power to diminish.

- Japanese supported military officers + their expansionist plans.

1937 ⇒ Prince Konoe Fumimaro ⇒ appointed as PM

- military led invasion into china
- also permitted formation of cabinet planning office > made up of mostly military officers
 - shifted control of Japans finances from civilian govt into hands of the military.

army minister ⇒ General Tojo Hideki ⇒ took over as PM

- signalled military's total control over Japanese govt
-