

Japans Industrialisation

Militarist Govt's industrialisation efforts ⇒ efforts were further encouraged by new emphasis on ⇒ expanding empire and preparing for war.

- also shifted from developing consumer industries to heavy industries + chemical production
 - led to a production of arms and big construction projects ⇒ roads, railways, bridges

Govt ⇒ also increased spending to stimulate Japan's economy.

More money ⇒ set aside for heavy industries, expanding manufacturing industries and strengthening Japan's economy

Set up of these new industries ⇒ gave rise to new zaibatsu

- large business corporations ⇒ made huge profits from govt contracts in chemicals, construction and related areas
- included Nissan, Nichitsu, Mori ⇒ which were closely linked to and influenced by military
 - played key role in Japan's empire ⇒ through economic development and exploitation of resources in Korea and Manchuria.

Military hoped ⇒ this would enable Japan to develop into self sufficient and industrially strong state.
