

Growing Opposition to Civilian Government

back in japan -> network of ultranationalist and anti democratic activists -> began to form and grow.

This network of ultranationalist groups -> included junior military officers who likely had the secret backing of senior military commanders.

They were against the civilian political leaders and the zaibatsu -> whom they regarded as self serving.

One group was the Showa Restoration Faction.

-> it wanted to remove all aspects of democratic government and restore direct rule to the emperor.

there were other extremist groups as well -> such as the sakurakai, kudoha, and ketsumeidan these groups all shared opposition to democracy.
