

Gleichschaltung(Coordination)

Hitler ⇒ had seen how the civil service, the judiciary, army and other important groups ⇒ had undermined the WR.
⇒ was not going to let that happen to him.

→ he continued to strengthen his power through a process called Gleichschaltung, coordination (means bringing everything together)

⇒ involved bringing all aspects of the state under Nazi Control

from that point on ⇒ it became almost impossible to be promoted in the civil service unless one belonged in Nazi party

In May ⇒ all trade unions were banned.

All local councils and state assemblies ⇒ had to have a Nazi Majority over 400 locally elected council members and 70 locally elected mayors ⇒ were forced out of their positions.

July ⇒ Hitler passed a law banning all other political parties.

→ Germany became a one party state.
